

Welcome to NAGAI BOTANICAL GARDEN

The Nagai Botanical Garden, established in 1974 in the southern part of Osaka City and known as an urban oasis of greenery and nature, is one of the finest gardens in Japan. The vast 24.2-hectare (59.7 ac) site is home to 1,200 varieties of plants, and the Oike Lake is home to aquatic plants. The Garden has eleven specialty gardens, including the Rose Garden, the Hydrangea Garden, and the Peony Garden, as well as a 2,000 m² (21,527 ft²) flower field, the Life Garden, where visitors can enjoy beautiful blooming flowers and scenery season to season.

Integrated with the Osaka Museum of Natural History, the Garden is suitable for nature observation and nature study, and visitors can learn about the history of nature in Osaka from various viewpoints.

The collage consists of three distinct images. The top image shows a lush green roof garden with a circular wooden deck and a small building. The middle image shows a gallery with several framed paintings on a white wall. The bottom image shows an atrium with large potted plants and a glass railing.
